

The 4th annual Online Discovery™ Conference is now open for registration. You'll be able to participate online from your own office.

Or come network and discuss with your peers at the Credit Union Association of New Mexico, which will host the online event in its training room at no charge.

Online Discovery gives credit union professionals insight into the most important topics in the industry. The best part? It's completely free.

CUANM will host the Online Discovery Conference at its office as a free open house. Spend the day or drop by just for a session or two. You'll be able to discuss the conference and network with your peers here.

Attendees can attend 13 sessions, a virtual expo center, and share ideas with other industry professionals. Content will focus on some of the most important issues in the credit union industry:

- Remaining relevant to members
- Managing Compliance and Risk
- Driving growth

While sessions are targeted specifically to CEOs and senior leadership teams at credit unions, all credit union staff are invited to participate.

Think it couldn't get any better? No travel costs, no expensive registration fee, and you can watch in your office or come to the nearby CUANM training room. Participants are able to work around their schedules and be as involved as they chose to be throughout the day.

After the live event, participants can access their favorite content On Demand until June 27, 2014.
